

Greeting People for the First Time

Sometimes we know the right words to say when meeting new people, but we find it hard to say them. Practicing in advance can make it easier.

The people below are meeting for the first time, and they want to be friendly. What do you think they could say to each other? Write the friendly greetings they might use in the conversation balloons by their heads. Then practice saying them to someone else who is willing to role-play with you.

